"General Sherman's Grand March through Central Georgia," complete with plantation houses and distant pillars of smoke, was depicted in the December 10, 1864 issue of Harper's Weekly.

“Oh, just burn a barn or something. Make a smoke like the Indians do.”

GENERAL WILLIAM T. SHERMAN, ON HIS METHOD FOR LOCATING HIS CAVALRY

Rebel resistance

The only formal resistance was met near Griswoldville, where Georgia militia tried to stem Sherman's advance. The militia were slaughtered—650 killed or injured, with only 62 Union casualties. Most of the fighting took the form of skirmishing against scattered militia and the few thousand Confederate cavalymen led by General Joseph Wheeler, whose men took horses and valuables well
