

Combat at Franklin

The Battle of Franklin was sometimes called the "Pickett's Charge of the West," so quickly did the Rebels advance. Though moving "with the speed of an avalanche," the Army of Tennessee was all but devastated in five hours.