

The Battle of Five Forks

Union cavalry break the Confederate line, as depicted by French artist Paul Philippoteaux. General Sheridan personally led the decisive charge that broke Pickett's division. About 3,000 Confederate troops were captured.

Evacuation order

Jefferson Davis's order to evacuate the Confederate capital was issued on April 2. He and various members of his cabinet abandoned the city that night, heading by train for Danville, Virginia.