

Richmond in flames

Confederate troops destroyed the city's arsenals and factories before they fled. The explosions started fires in residential areas, and all night long the citizens rushed away in "every description of cart, carriage, and vehicle."