

Confederate officer's kepi

The gray woolen kepi was standard headgear for the Confederate soldier, although it offered little protection against the elements. The broad-brimmed slouch hat was also in common use among troops.

“We are a dirty, ragged set ... but courage and heroism find many a true disciple among us.”

THEODORE T. FOGLE OF THE 2ND GEORGIA INFANTRY, LETTER TO HIS PARENTS, OCTOBER 13, 1862

Desertions and casualties