

Rebel Uniforms

Typically dyed in colors of gray or butternut (brown), Southern uniforms were noted more for their simplicity of cut and style than for their military panache. Many a Yankee observed that the Confederate uniform was barely a uniform at all.