

Bombarding Fort Henry

The ironclads and timberclads of Foote's Western Gunboat Flotilla overcame resistance from the shore batteries at Fort Henry on the Cumberland River by naval bombardment alone.

Grant looking over the battlefield

On horseback, Ulysses Grant surveys the scene at snowy Fort Donelson on February 15, 1862. Some 2,500 Union soldiers and around 1,500 Confederates were killed or wounded in the battle.

Attempted breakout