

The Shenandoah Valley Campaign

The feats of marching achieved by Jackson's forces were prodigious. In seven weeks, they marched some 650 miles (1,050km), won several small battles, and, most importantly, kept Union troops that were needed for the Peninsula Campaign occupied in the Valley.