

Medal of Honor

The award of the Medal of Honor for conspicuous bravery was instituted for the Union Army in 1862. This one was awarded to Brigadier General Daniel Butterfield for his "distinguished gallantry" at Gaines' Mill.