

The Battle of Antietam

September 17, 1862, was the costliest day of fighting in American history. A desperate Confederate defense against repeated assaults by determined U.S. troops resulted in 22,700 casualties. Despite superiority in numbers, however, Union forces were only able to force a Confederate withdrawal to Virginia.