

Defending the sunken road

Confederate infantry take turns loading and shooting, maintaining a constant fire from behind the stone wall on Telegraph Road at the foot of Marye's Heights. Repeated Northern assaults over open ground failed to reach the sunken road.

“ It is well that war is so terrible.
We should grow too fond of it.”

ROBERT E. LEE TO JAMES LONGSTREET DURING THE BATTLE OF FREDERICKSBURG