

Under fire on the Mississippi

This Currier & Ives print, made shortly after the Battle of Vicksburg, shows Admiral David Porter's fleet under Confederate bombardment beneath the bluffs of Vicksburg—Porter's ship, USS Benton, is in the lead. Although Confederate guns fired for three hours, only one ship was lost and the fleet met Ulysses S. Grant below the city, as planned.