

Invading the North

Lee's army crosses the Potomac to invade the North. With a presidential election to come in the fall, Lee and President Davis feel that a Confederate victory on Northern soil may pay untold political dividends.