

He was also made lieutenant general, a rank that had previously been held only by George Washington.