

Line repairs

Black teamsters work on the railroad in northern Virginia in 1862–63. Maintaining supply lines was one of many support roles performed by Black Americans, even after they enlisted.