

Pistols

Civil War soldiers were often photographed clutching a pistol, though in reality many infantrymen found them too cumbersome to use and carry. These weapons predominantly became the sidearms of choice for officers and cavalrymen.

1 .38 Caliber Pepperbox Pistol (Confederate and Union) Multiple-barrel weapons were popular from the 1830s to the Civil War. They took their name from their resemblance to a pepper grinder.

2 Colt Model 1860 Army Revolver (Union) This six-shot .44 caliber revolver was the primary sidearm of Union troops. The Federal Government ordered more than 127,000.
