BEFORE

1938 Algiers, a romantic thriller starring Hedy Lamarr, is set in North Africa.

1941 The Maltese Falcon makes Humphrey Bogart a star.

AFTER

1944 In To Have and Have Not, Bogart and Lauren Bacall star in another Resistance story.

Made at the height of World War II, Casablanca is a romance set in neutral Morocco, just as the fighting is getting uncomfortably close.

Few of those working on the production thought they were making a great movie. Ingrid Bergman, who had not been the producers' first choice, was anxious to move on to For Whom the Bell Tolls (1943); and by all accounts, there was no love lost between Humphrey Bogart

Warner Bros. promoted the movie as a typical romance of its time, little thinking that it would become one of the most popular movies ever made.
