

■ MAJOR SOFTWARE & OS UPDATES

Apple's iOS 27 may bring 5 big upgrades to your iPhone

Even as iOS 26 is still new for many users, reports suggest Apple is already laying the groundwork for iOS 27, which is expected to be previewed at WWDC in June. The update is widely tipped to prioritise stability, speed, and reliability, echoing the philosophy behind macOS Snow Leopard rather than introducing radical design changes. iOS 27 is also believed to prepare the software for future devices, including Apple's rumoured foldable iPhone, with better multi screen app behaviour. Additional expectations include refinements to the Liquid Glass interface, a refreshed look for Siri, smarter Apple Intelligence features such as World Knowledge, expanded satellite capabilities, and a possible paid Health+ subscription. If these rumours hold true, iOS 27 could become a quietly important update for everyday usability and future hardware from Apple. tinyurl.com/s71ubws

■ CREATIVE PRODUCTIVITY

Apple launches Creator Studio bundle of apps

Apple has announced a new subscription service called Creator Studio, positioning it as a unified bundle of professional creative apps, AI powered tools, and premium content. The subscription includes access to Final Cut Pro and Logic Pro on Mac and iPad, Pixelmator Pro on Mac and iPad, and Mac only apps such as Motion, Compressor, and Main-Stage. Apple says individual one time purchases will continue to exist, but Creator Studio versions will unlock additional features and exclusive content. The company is also extending new AI driven tools to apps like Final Cut Pro, Pixelmator Pro, and even iWork apps such as Pages, Numbers, and Keynote. In India, Creator Studio is priced at Rs 399 per month or Rs 3,999 per year, with discounted education pricing available. The service launches on January 28 via the App Store, offers a one month free trial, supports Family Sharing for up to six users, and provides three free months with select new Mac or iPad purchases. tinyurl.com/ws7g1u

Google to let you switch Gmail addresses

Google is preparing to roll out a long awaited feature that lets users change their @gmail.com email address without creating a new account, while preserving emails, files, photos, and access across services like YouTube, Drive, Maps, and Google Play. tinyurl.com/squ7b1

India's app downloads hit 25.5 bn in 2025, driven by AI and micro-drama apps

Sensor Tower data shows India hit 25.5 billion app downloads in 2025, driven by AI and micro-drama apps, with rising engagement but still low consumer spending across major categories. tinyurl.com/s81ksx

WhatsApp introduces members tags, text stickers for groups chats

WhatsApp introduces new group chat features like member tags, text based stickers, and advanced event reminders to improve coordination, personalisation, and expression for users worldwide. tinyurl.com/738egs