

COVER FEATURE

Imaging: Nikhil Wahal

India's creator economy no longer feels like a trend you track. It feels like a system you live inside. Scroll through any platform today and you're not just consuming content, you're witnessing careers being built in realtime. Their identities being forged in public, and entire businesses emerging from what once looked like casual uploads. A decade ago, the idea of "being a creator" sat somewhere between aspiration and accident. Today, it sits at the intersection of ambition, discipline, and design. But beneath the billion views, viral reels, and headline numbers lies a set of intensely disciplined personal philosophies. This cover feature is a glimpse into that mosaic of mindsets, each decoding what it means to create, sustain, and evolve in India today. Because if the creator economy is the headline, the real story is the people behind it. Figuring things out, one upload at a time.

Jayesh Shinde | editor@digit.in