

NO TO DESK JOB, YES TO DANCE

SIMRAN JAT TURNED PASSION INTO LIFE-LONG PURPOSE

For Simran Jat, the creator's journey didn't begin with a grand plan. It was all instinct. Despite academics, graduation, internships, "my mind kept drifting back to my dance classes, my rehearsals," Simran recounts. Eventually, that quiet persistence turned into clarity, leading to a leap of faith. She chose purpose over expectation, and dance over everything else.

What's unique about your content?

As a dance creator and choreographer I'd describe my work as bold, unapologetic, and deeply empowering. My choreographies have resonated with millions, but what truly defines my content is the energy and attitude behind it. I have been a plus size all my life, and I have never let that dictate my ambition or limit my expression. If anything, it's shaped my voice – one that challenges outdated norms and celebrates individuality. Whether I'm in a studio or on screen, I show up fully, without hesitation or apology. People connect with my work because it gives them permission to do the same, to take up space unapologetically, to feel confident all throughout life unbothered by judgment. At its core, my brand is about breaking stereotypes, embracing your power, and dancing like you already own the world.

Is your content creation journey guided by a personal mission?

My content creation journey has always been guided by a larger purpose. Over time, I've seen many women feel inspired by my work, finding the courage to pursue what they truly love not just dance, but any passion they may have once thought was out of reach. By choosing to present myself authentically and without filters online, I hope to make their aspirations feel more attainable. I'm proud to have built a community that goes beyond simply enjoying my dance content. It's a space where people feel encouraged to grow in confidence and take steps toward what they've always wanted to do.

How did you overcome challenges you faced in your journey?

In today's digital age, the internet can sometimes feel harsher than reality, so developing a thick skin becomes essential if you want to put yourself out there. Over time, I learned to tune out the noise and shift my focus away from external expectations to simply doing my best in whatever I create. As a content creator, I believe constructive criticism is valuable and should always be welcomed, as it helps you grow. However, baseless opinions and attention-seeking negativity are best ignored. Staying grounded in your purpose and continuing to evolve creatively is what truly makes the journey worthwhile.

What is your advice for creators on chasing revenue vs creating a unique, long lasting voice?

I believe financial stability is important for everyone after all, we all aspire to grow, upgrade our lifestyles, and live comfortably. However, as a content creator, constantly chasing revenue can sometimes lead you down the wrong path. It's easy to say yes to brand deals that don't align with your values or personal brand, simply because they pay well or seem appealing on the surface. Over time, I've realised that over commercialising your content can dilute your authenticity. Today, I prioritise authenticity over quick gains, because building trust with your audience is far more valuable in the long run. d
