

Programs

Whether you say program, app, or code, what you're describing is a special set of instructions called "software." Most modern devices are controlled by software. This includes cellphones, tablets, satellites in space, cars, planes, and even robots on Mars. Software is all created by programmers, who are also known as coders.

Apps

Each app on a phone or tablet is a tiny program that works by itself. Apps can do all sorts of things. They let you take photos, send messages, and play music and games.

Drones

Drones are devices that do not need a pilot to make them fly. Instead, a person uses a remote control and special software. They are used to take photos and videos.
