

Diet and teeth

Looking inside a dinosaur's mouth reveals plenty about their diet. The shape of the jaw and the types of teeth reflect what was on the prehistoric menu. While meat-eaters had pointed teeth, plant-eaters had beaks or peglike teeth.

Front teeth stripped leaves.

