

the South Vietnamese government and the American and South Vietnamese soldiers charged with defending it.

Armored personnel carrier

The relatively flat terrain of War Zone C was ideal for the US Army's M113 armored personnel carrier, nicknamed the Green Dragon by the Viet Cong. Made of aluminum, it offered its two-man crew protection, yet was lighter than a tank and had an off-road speed of 29 mph (47 km/h).