

Fighting the offensive

US Marines take cover behind a tank as it fires rounds over an outer wall of the Hue citadel on February 13, 1968. The ancient city of Hue saw the longest, bloodiest battle of the Tet Offensive, with some of the worst devastation of the war.