

» AFTER

The Geneva Conference, intended to negotiate peace in Korea and Indochina, opened in April 1954. By then, French troops were already under siege by the Viet Minh at Dien Bien Phu.

FRENCH WITHDRAWAL

The surrender at Dien Bien Phu in May 1954 ended any French ambitions to stay in Vietnam. At Geneva, the victorious Viet Minh leadership, under pressure from the Soviet Union and China, accepted an independence deal that divided Vietnam.
