

Weird and wonderful

Some whales look a little unusual.

The beluga is a white whale, and has the nickname of “sea canary.” It can shape its lips to make all kinds of sounds, including barks, chirps, grunts, squeaks, and moos.

A color change

Belugas are born blue-gray in color, but this turns to white by the age of six. They live in icy waters, protected by a layer of blubber as thick as your hand is long.
