

EXTERIOR

Many American vehicles such as the Hellcat used common components, a feature that was noticed by German commander Erwin Rommel in Tunisia when he first encountered American forces. Interchangeable parts such as headlights meant that fewer items were required in the supply chain, helping with the logistic burden of supplying an army in the field.

1. Allied recognition symbol 2. Klaxon 3. Headlamp
4. Fuel filler cover 5. Main gunsight aperture 6. Gunner's periscope 7. Commander's machine gun 8. Gun cleaning rods stowed on hull 9. Crewman's stowage 10. Machine gun tripod for ground use 11. Shovel stowed on hull 12. Return roller under top of track 13. Rear light 14. Engine bay

