

Seeking sanctuary

Vietnamese refugees arrive at the island of Tai A Chau, Hong Kong in 1989. Boat people were moved to this previously uninhabited island that summer, but rioted in September due to terrible conditions: crumbling huts, lack of electricity and toilets, and even an outbreak of cholera.