

When I started scalp trading, I was clueless. I didn't know how to do it unless. I observed the market before putting any money at risk and learned it.

The market is noisy on smaller timeframes, but, it is the exact place where scalpers enter the game.

Most seasoned investors I met have always suggested that I should become a long-term investor than a scalper. However, I prefer to ride roller coaster every day. I sit in front of my computer screen to find profitable trades every day.

In hope of making quick money, I even tried a 1-minute timeframe but that didn't suit me and my mental strength.
