

Some questions that you may have looking at the prices -

Why are the Spot Price and the Futures Price of an asset not the same?

If the underlying asset through which the derivative derives its value is the same, why is there a price difference?

What does this difference tell us about the market? What causes it?