

Social Media & Messaging Apps

Connecting regional voices through community platforms

India's social media and messaging landscape has undergone a seismic shift since 2020, as homegrown platforms have surged to fill the void left by global services, offering vernacular interfaces, community-focused features, and localized content that resonate with millions of users across the subcontinent. This chapter explores India's leading social networking and short-video apps – ShareChat, Moj, Chingari – and highlights emerging contenders like Trell, Public, and Lokal.

For each platform, we provide practical, step-by-step guidance on setting up an account, creating content, and leveraging unique features to thrive in regional-language communities.

Whether you're an urban influencer or a Tier-III town storyteller, these Made-in-India apps empower you to connect, share, and create like never before.

1. ShareChat – India's multilingual community hub

ShareChat is a Bangalore-based social network designed exclusively for Indian languages, with over 350 million monthly active users across 15 languages, making it one of the fastest-growing vernacular platforms worldwide.

Founded in January 2015 by Ankush Sachdeva, Bhanu Pratap Singh, and Farid Ahsan, ShareChat has since expanded into a
