

Supercharge your productivity

Hidden gems that will make you super productive

If you've ever felt overwhelmed by your to-do list, distracted during deep work, or like your phone is just a portal for doomscrolling instead of a productivity machine, you're not alone. The mobile app world is bursting with productivity tools – but finding the right ones often means sifting through big-brand, pay-to-unlock behemoths that hog space, data, and attention. This chapter is for the unsung heroes: underrated, mostly free apps that quietly outperform mainstream giants like Evernote, Microsoft 365, or Notion – for a fraction of the friction (and none of the cost).

We've picked 10 under-the-radar mobile apps that help you organize, focus, collaborate, and create workflows you'll actually enjoy using. Most are fully free or open-source, built with user privacy in mind, and designed to help you get things done smarter, not harder.

1. Anytype

Platforms: Android, iOS

Think of it as a cross between Notion, Obsidian, and a digital brain you own. Anytype is a beautifully designed all-in-one productivity platform where you can create notes, databases, calendars, tasks, and more. But unlike cloud-bound services, it stores everything locally first and syncs with encryption across