

Netflix users beware! Fraudsters are sending fake emails to steal your data

Online scams are getting smarter, and cybercriminals are always finding new ways to trick people. If you have a Netflix account, you should be extra careful because a new scam is targeting subscribers with fake emails. These emails claim that your payment details need to be updated, but in reality, they are designed to steal your personal and financial information. According to a report by The Mirror, scammers are sending fake emails with the subject line, "Let's tackle your payment details." Unlike obvious scams filled with spelling mistakes, this one looks convincing. It uses Netflix's official branding, including logos, colours, and fonts, making it appear genuine. <https://tinyurl.com/36ct2fwn>

Google removes over 180 apps from Play Store

Google has taken down over 180 apps from the Play Store after discovering a large-scale ad fraud scheme. This scheme affected more than 56 million downloads, causing harm to users, advertisers, and app developers. According to a Forbes report, the tech giant tried to control the situation by rolling out security patches to fix the issue. However, these efforts didn't fully solve the problem, leaving Google with no choice but to remove the fraudulent apps from the store. <https://tinyurl.com/bdz7xz4f>

Retired teacher loses ₹96 lakh in online insurance scam

In a shocking incident, a retired teacher from Indore lost Rs 96 lakh to scammers who pretended to be officials from SBI Life Insurance. The fraud happened over two years, from 2023 to January 2025, and serves as an important reminder to stay alert against cybercrime. Keep reading to know how the scam unfolded. The woman, who had previously purchased two insurance policies from SBI Life Insurance, received a call from a man identifying himself as Rajiv Sharma, claiming to be an official from the company. He told her that she was eligible for a surrender amount if she paid a premium. Believing the call to be legitimate, she made an initial payment of Rs 1 lakh as a processing fee. <https://tinyurl.com/yx2hab5r>

Man loses ₹2.5 lakh to KYC update scam

In today's digital world, banking frauds are on the rise and scammers are coming up with new ways to trick people. One such case recently surfaced in Pune, where a 54-year-old man lost Rs 2.5 lakh after falling for a fake KYC update scam. Keep reading to know how the scam unfolded and how to avoid falling for such frauds.

The victim, a private company employee, received a message from an unknown number claiming that his bank account's KYC update was pending. The message warned that if he did not complete the process, his account would be blocked. To make it look legitimate, the message also had a link to an APK file (an Android app file). <https://tinyurl.com/mtb8z2pv>

Hyderabad man loses ₹1.9 lakh to fake PM Kisan Scheme offer via WhatsApp link

A 53-year-old man from Hyderabad fell victim to a scam after he received a fraudulent link in a WhatsApp message. The victim, who works for a private company and resides in Old Safilguda, received the link in a WhatsApp message from an unidentified number claiming to be from the PM Kisan scheme. Some of the main advantages of the PM Kisan scheme, which is well-known for providing farmers with financial support, were included in the message. The victim clicked on the link because it appeared to be genuine, which led him to a fraud website. <https://tinyurl.com/ywz7965w>