

only by random environmental sounds. Late in life, Cage also took up drawing and printmaking.

KEY WORKS: Sonata for Clarinet, 1933; The Seasons (ballet), 1947; 4'33", 1952; Cheap Imitation, 1969

JOHN CAGE, 1982

Iannis Xenakis

1922–2001, GREEK-FRENCH

Born in Romania to Greek parents, Xenakis grew up mainly in Greece and in 1947 settled in Paris, becoming a French citizen in 1965. Before and after World War II (during which he lost an eye fighting with the Greek Resistance), he trained as an engineer, afterward working in Paris for 12 years (1948–1960) in the practice of the