

Soviet authorities for producing “noisy mud instead of real musical innovation”). Her output includes orchestral, choral, chamber, and instrumental music, stage works, and film scores. She sometimes uses unusual combinations of instruments and blends elements of the Western classical tradition with influences from Asiatic music (she was born and grew up in what is now the Republic of Tatarstan, a place that has been at the crossroads of various civilizations).

KEY WORKS: Offertorium (violin concerto), 1980; Jetzt immer Schnee (Now Always Snow, cantata for voices and instruments), 1993; St. John Passion, 2000; Mary Queen of Scots (film score), 2013

Henryk Górecki

1933–2010, POLISH

Until he was almost 60 years old, Górecki was a respected figure in contemporary music but he was virtually unknown to the world at large. This situation changed dramatically when a recording of his Symphony No. 3, released in 1992, became a massive international hit, gaining considerable radio exposure and selling more than a million copies, an unprecedented figure for a