

Victims of Hiroshima for string orchestra, a characteristically somber work in which he creates a highly individual, harshly expressive sound-world. It won him the first of a long list of major prizes and he has also received several prestigious composition residencies in Europe and the US. His work includes symphonies, concertos, operas, choral and chamber music, and compositions for solo instruments. He has often conducted his own work, and has also made a reputation as a conductor of the work of other composers.

KEY WORKS: Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima, 1960; The Devils of Loudun (opera), 1969; Polish Requiem, 1984; Clarinet Quartet, 1993
