

caused conflict with the institution's administrators. He was notorious for his vanity, boastfulness, and touchiness about criticism, and some contemporaries thought that his worldliness conflicted with his status as a priest.

SCORE FOR OPUS 9, LA CETRA

Antonio Vivaldi dedicated his set of 12 concertos for the violin, entitled La cetra (named after a lyre-like instrument), to Charles VI and presented the emperor with a manuscript copy.

International fame

Vivaldi's music was first published in Venice in 1705, but more