

FREDERICK II OF PRUSSIA

Bach dedicated his Musical Offering to the Prussian king, though the work is now seen as the composer's critique of Frederick's religious and aesthetic values.

Final works

In 1749, Bach went blind. He died the following year, possibly of diabetes, and was buried in an unmarked grave. His work as a