

16TH-CENTURY GUIDONIAN HAND

Guido created his notated-hand system so that, in his words, “any intelligent and diligent person” could learn a chant. This 16th-century example is complete with solmization syllables (re, mi, fa, for example)—syllables that are attributed to the notes in a musical scale.

Legacy and influence

Guido was not, strictly speaking, a significant composer (his only known original work is the hymn that he used as a teaching aid),
