

Niccolò Paganini

1782–1840, ITALIAN

A legendary, thrilling violinist-composer, Paganini was one of the most popular and radical musicians of his day. His success and increasing wealth sparked a passion for drinking, gambling, and womanizing.