

performed in 1839 and the rediscovered “Unfinished” Symphony in 1865. Schubert’s total output turned out to be vast—about a thousand of his works are now cataloged and he has taken his place in the pantheon of great composers alongside Beethoven, Haydn, and Mozart.