

CLARA WIECK

Wieck met Schumann at the age of 11 and was in love with him throughout her teens. They married after a battle with her father, who tried to block the union.

Schumann was not diligent in his studies, devoting his days to the piano and his nights to drinking and womanizing. In 1828, he met Friedrich Wieck, a Leipzig musician famed for his unique method of teaching piano. Wieck provided Schumann with an escape from a legal career by promising Schumann's mother he would turn him into a great piano virtuoso. In 1830, Schumann moved into Wieck's house in Leipzig as a live-in pupil, joining a household that included Wieck's
