

Johannes Brahms

1833–1897, GERMAN

One of the giants of 19th-century music, Brahms was a perfectionist who excelled in every major genre except opera. For most of his life, he was able to devote himself exclusively to composing.