

Edward Elgar

1857–1934, BRITISH

The most prominent English composer of the early 20th century, Elgar wrote music ranging from the dramatic, brash, and robust to the tender and lyrical. His work retains universal appeal.