

WILLIAM BYRD, c. 1580

The talented composer, who wrote more than 500 works, was initially trained, at London's Chapel Royal, in singing by Richard Bower and in keyboard and composition by Thomas Tallis. Years later, he was described by the Chapel Royal as "a Father of Musick."