

Dubois, director of the Conservatoire, was favoring students of one of his colleagues. Dubois was forced to resign. Although Ravel had missed out on the prize, the immense publicity won him the attention he deserved.

ALCYONE

This score is from Ravel's Alcyone (1902). The cantata was the entry for one of his five unsuccessful attempts to win the Prix de Rome.

New avenues

This new-found celebrity inspired Ravel to revisit his earlier piano pieces and score them for orchestra to entice a wider concert-going audience. These arrangements showed that he had a flair for orchestration, revealed to brilliant effect in his first