

EL AMOR BRUJO SCORE

The cover of the score for Falla's work was illustrated by the Russian avant-garde artist and designer Natalia Goncharova, who captured the vibrant drama of flamenco.

International success

The sensuous Nights in the Gardens of Spain, described by the composer as “symphonic impressions for piano and orchestra,” followed in 1916, blending French influences with distinctively Andalusian rhythms and melodies. When his colorful two-act ballet The Three-Cornered Hat was premiered by Sergei Diaghilev's prestigious Ballets Russes in London in 1919, Falla
