

Béla Bartók

1881–1945, HUNGARIAN

Deeply rooted in Hungarian folk music, Bartók's musical language was groundbreaking and idiosyncratic. During World War II, he left Budapest for New York, where he struggled to survive.