

the operation, never having regained consciousness.