

Wiltshire, where he began to write in an experimental and dissonant style, later influenced by the jazz and blues he had heard on a trip to the US in 1965. After his breakup with Hawker in 1970, he returned to his former lyricism. Despite health issues in the 1980s and early 1990s, he traveled widely, absorbing different musical influences.

Tippett was held in remarkably high esteem, being awarded several national honors. He died in London in 1998, aged 93, following a stroke.